About This Game

Road to Eden is a third-person multiplayer survival coop game, set within the post-apocalyptic ruins of a world destroyed by an alien invasion. 99% of the human population was wiped out in an instant and now humanity's last hope is Project Eden, a base of operation where the remaining survivors are fighting back. You wake up at the side of the road with no memory and must team up with other survivors to make the long and dangerous journey to Eden.

Road to Eden is currently in early access, some of its features are still work in progress and could behave differently than expected.

Road to Eden is played on Host/Client basis, when you start a game you essentially start a server where your friends can login and assist you with your story, so everytime you start a game you will experience a different story!

The crafting in Road to Eden is based on learning recipes by finding books or broken objects from which you learn new recipes. All recipes require a number of items to be able to be crafted, once crafted, you can find the item in your inventory as well as gain experience which is part of the character skill system.

You can build using a wide variety of blocks, from large blocks to thin walls, fortifications, traps, furniture, windows, doors, fabricators, workstations and a lot more!

Building your base in Road to Eden is one of many ways to survive the weather and the dangers that lurk at night

The world of Road to Eden has a variety of randomly generated dungeons, bunkers, sewers, caves with no loading screen, fight your way through the dungeons to gain experience, loot, find rare items, and get skill points.

At this stage one dungeon is available, more will be added as development progresses.

The world of Road to Eden is populated with multiple factions, the infected are ordinary people infected with the blue substance brought by the visitors, they are everywhere and their sole mission is to infect you and other survivors. The rebels are bandits willing to kill on sight, they create anarchy and chaos in the land.

More factions will be added post-release. (check road map)

While exploring the world of Road to Eden you will discover a multitude of locations from small villages to deep caves and crash sites, each location may hide a piece of the story. With each login, all lootable house furniture will randomly generate, making your scavenging visits different every time!

The world of Road to Eden is littered with secret areas where you can find rare loot, some areas are open, others require special items or keys, you can find these items by solving puzzles or quests

As you become part of Eden's effort against the visitors, you will receive missions ranging from clearing out infected from an area to acquiring rare items.

- We are also planning to add special random world events ranging from visitors landings sites to major paramilitary operations, it's up to you to decide if you engage, and how you engage if you decide to do so!

- The random events system will be implemented after Early Access release

- After release we will be adding The paramilitary, well armed and well trained, they won't hesitate to kill you on sight if you interfere with their operation. And finally the visitors, we have heard stories about them, no one knows why they came and no one survived an encounter with them.

- Adding more dungeons to explore

Loving this game so far! The Developer is very active on the discord and everyone is very helpful. Remember its Early Access so it does need optimized and content which they are working on daily. Def watch this one to all the survival lovers.. I really hate to give this game a negative review because I can tell a lot of effort has been put into making the game. The experience I had within an hours time of playing was not good. There was hardly any loot and most weapon cases were empty. The only loot I got was glow sticks. Its just no fun running around looting for glow sticks. Also the graphics and animations are not that great either. Maybe later on down the line this game may be good but as of right now I would wait on purchasing.. This game's optimization is joke

It is alot like 7days but worst

Hello survivors,

In this update you can craft claim crests to protect your blocks from other players, all blocks within the claims area will be 50 times stronger against player attacks. Claims continuously decay and need to be repaired using special items called crest repair kit, crests will be destroyed and disappear if not repaired, any blocks not protected by a claim crest can be removed and easily destroyed by other players.

You can play the new update by switching to the alpha branch, we will push the new update to the main branch in a couple of weeks
